

6 MONTHS HARD LABOR FOR MEN WHO LIVE ON STREET WOMEN.

System by Which Jewish Girls Are Made Slaves Has Strong Backing—Some Cops in It—Man Higher Up Has Forceful Friend—Bankers' Campaign Only Begun.

Magistrate Barlow asked District Attorney Jerome yesterday to send a representative to the Yorkville police court to note the evidence in the case of the eight young men accused of being "cadets," who were arrested Friday. Mr. Jerome sent District Attorney Kresel to help Lawyer Noot, who was retained by Jacob H. Schiff, Isaac N. Seligman, Rudolph Lewisohn and other prominent Hebrews to prosecute the case. Mr. Kresel had a talk with Mr. Noot, and the two went over the evidence that five private detectives had gathered.

When the eight young men were brought to court yesterday, they were examined by the Yorkville police court. Lawyer Noot produced a big tin box filled with affidavits containing evidence. Assistant District Attorney Kresel said he was ready for the prosecution.

"I must ask for an adjournment to prepare a defense for these young men, who are already condemned by public sentiment," said Lawyer James Nugent. "The crime they are charged with may be said to be worse than murder. Wall Street bankers, the District Attorney's office, the press and public clamor are calling for their conviction. The prosecution has been gathering evidence for months and I must have time to prepare a defense."

Magistrate Barlow said he thought the request reasonable and set the examination for next Tuesday in the Tombs police court.

All of the prisoners, with the exception of one girl, were released. She was bailed out. The court room was crowded with the friends of the men and women prisoners.

"The work of rooting out the abduction system on the East Side has now begun in earnest," said Magistrate Cornell, who is sitting this week in Eastern Market court. It was Magistrate Cornell who enlisted Mr. Schiff's aid in the crusade.

"We have found a provision of the Penal Code," he went on, "which will enable us to deal with abduction very effectively. It is subdivision 9 of Section 857."

This section reads:

"Every male person who lives wholly or in part on the earnings of prostitution, or who, in any public house, solicits for immoral purposes, or who, in any public place, habitually in the company of a prostitute, or who is willing to take money for support, shall be deemed to be living on the earnings of prostitution."

"All such persons when brought before us," said the Magistrate, "will be dealt with summarily as vagrants and will be committed to the workhouse for six months at hard labor. We realize that there will be a lot of saloon keepers ready to bail these people out, but their bonds will not be accepted. Some political influence will doubtless be brought to bear on us also, but we are going to fight it to the end."

"We realized that the police could not get hold of these criminals as well as a few private detectives, and we have organized them and get direct evidence. Ten years ago there were very few, if any, Jewish women on the streets in this city; now they are very much in the majority, and they are more numerous around Fourteenth street than on the lower East Side. This abominable abduction system is the cause of it all. Young girls go out to work for a little pleasure and are roped in by these fellows, and then they are sold to the lowest bidder. The abductor lives a little room in some tenement and induces the girl to live there. You ask him about it, and he will say that he lives there, but they are nothing more nor less than miserable hovels of vice. For a consideration, his friends are allowed to share his crime, and the girl is sold to the lowest bidder. If we can get hold of these men we can root out the whole thing. The girls will be treated with leniency. If their parents are willing to take them back, and they have work that they can do, they ought to be allowed to go free. Otherwise, they will have to be given into the care of the institutions."

"There is no doubt that a strong fight will be made to protect these young men," said Mr. Noot. "They are part of a system of graft that branches out in various directions, and which yields a great deal of money. Hotel keepers, saloonkeepers, and others through it, concert halls, saloons, real estate owners, policemen and bondsmen profit by it. East Side politicians are connected in the system and are frequently pushed to the front when it is necessary to use their influence in court."

"Is there any man who is up in this business?" he was asked.

"If you mean to ask if there is any man high in the Police Department who is connected with this system," he replied, "No. But there is a man who directs the general policy of the shimshas or loafers who entice these girls and keep them in the system. We know who that man is. He is a man of intelligence, but no conscience. He keeps a low profile and gives his orders whenever any of the shimshas get into trouble. He has a fund from which to employ counsel, policemen, supply witnesses and do anything else necessary to protect the parasite from deserved punishment."

While there was no accusation in court against the police generally, it was said that several policemen of the Fifth street station are individually connected with some of the street walkers. The names of the policemen and the women were mentioned.

"He is my shimsha, and I don't get pinched already except by mistake. One of the street women said in court, pointing to a policeman in plain clothes:

"It is strange to see a policeman going to the men who ruined them," said one of the private detectives who spent ten weeks associating with the East Side girls for the purpose of getting evidence. "I have seen a man strike his woman a blow in the face on very small provocation. That usually made her more subservient to his whims. Most of them carry knives, and they think nothing of jabbing a knife into the woman who has just been with them. It is not lucky enough to earn plenty. If she were almost killed by her shimsha she would not complain to the police."

A girl must accept as her protector the man who claims to own her. If she discarded him for another, she would trouble right away. Strange as it may seem, the girls in the system would help persecute her. While chatting with her on the street they would cut her cheek or slap her, and she would be frequently arrested, and the $5 for the bondsman and the $5 or $10 in court would be a tax on her resources. Their room rent is exorbitant, and the average weekly expenses of these girls is $10."

It is said that the movement now begun by the West Street men will not end with a few arrests and convictions.

The men are usually husky young fellows who are scrappy and capable of doing anything. They go to the houses visited by the women and demand half the room and get it. They are organized into a society, and there is an almost daily meeting of some of them, when they discuss the business of the system and the money they have taken from their slaves.

Italians Threaten Witness Against Them. Joseph Mangosa, the complaining witness against several alleged members of the "Black Hand" who are under arrest in Jersey City, disappeared several days ago. He returned yesterday and told Chief of Police Murphy that he received warning that he would be killed if he had appeared against the gang. Chief Murphy told him not to worry.

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

Sheriff Erlanger makes each day an early morning call at Ludlow Street Jail, where the Sheriff leaves the jail vans little from a o'clock every morning.

Aside from making it a business call, the Sheriff frequently chats with the prisoners, and that is why some of them like him. He takes an interest in all the jail affairs and personally attends to many of the details. The Sheriff says that he enjoys his call at the old jail as much as any part of his duties.

"The raw food idea," said an uptown physician who takes more stock in diet and hygiene than in drugs, "is no longer a fad, but a vital fact in the lives of thousands of persons in this city."

"It would astonish you to know how much uncooked food is eaten these days and how many physicians are prescribing it. In my own practice I have known many cases of physical breakdown in which a regimen of raw cereals, eggs, milk, fruits and vegetables has done more good than any medicine I am confident, no other treatment would have accomplished."

Women take more readily to a raw diet than men do. The number of men who are taking it up is increasing all the time. A strange thing is that when a patient once acquires the habit of eating raw food he rarely goes back to a cooked diet.

"The prevailing fashion in jewelry," said a young broker's ornamentation, "is an ank of it. You can't get a stockpin or a pair of links that is not plastered over with pearls, diamonds, wild animals or impossible flowers. It is a case of the more the merrier. We are getting further away from it every day. But complex jewelry for men is the last straw."

The two story frame building that has stood at the southwest corner of Greenwich and Franklin streets for more than 150 years is to be torn down to make way for a new building.

The house played a part in one of New York's most notable murders. It was a boarding house, a century or more ago, and among its boarders was a girl named Elma Sands and a carpenter named Louis Weeks. Elma was supposed to have been killed by Weeks about 8:30 one night in December, 1790. He came home alone about 10 o'clock. Several days afterward her body was found in a well in Greenwich Meadows, near the site of the building at 89 Greene street. Weeks was tried and acquitted of the murder.

A man who unexpectedly came into a fortune not long ago found among his new belongings three pictures. They were painted by a Spanish artist eminent in his lifetime and of increasing value since his death. Before he had had time to become accustomed to the joys of possession he was asked by a communication from the Spanish Government severely fined in appearance and language. He knew enough Spanish to make out that it was an order to surrender the pictures, and the date on which they came into his hands and not, as he first believed, the date of the artist's death.

In due time he learned that in conducting this inquiry, the Spanish Government was following its usual course in regard to the notable painters of Spain. Every picture of importance painted by a Spanish artist is accurately described in the catalogue compiled by the government, and each incident of its history is noted in the record. The fact that a change of ownership of these pictures had taken place was known so soon in Madrid shows what vigilance these records are kept.

When the distribution of gifts brought home by a European traveller took place the other day, a brooch of gold and enamel fell to the lot of one of her friends. To show her appreciation the friend wore her new brooch, a souvenir of Paris, constantly. After several days she found that the pin was loose and took it at once to a well-known jeweler to have it mended.

As the clerk took the brooch from his hand as a light as recognition came into his eyes and he exclaimed, not too discreetly, "What, another?"

Upon being urged to explain he said that his firm had had those pins in stock for some months, but finding that they did not meet with ready sales he was decided to send them to a branch store in Paris. This was done last spring, and since early autumn five of these expatriated pins had come back to the house shop for repairs. The clerk then turned to the jeweler making the sixth.

SEEK TO FREE BOB AMMON. KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Upon the application of James A. Sealing of this city, Justice Cochrane, at Hudson, today granted a writ of habeas corpus ordering Warden Johnson of Sing Sing Prison to produce Robert A. Ammon at a special term of the Supreme Court to be held at Hudson Saturday next.

Ammon, who was a lawyer, was sentenced to prison in August, 1903, by Judge Newburger in General Sessions, for an indeterminate term, the maximum being four years and six months and the minimum term four years. He was convicted of receiving stolen money while attorney for William F. Miller of the 520 per cent. Franklin Building.

Brinnier & Sealing allege that Ammon's imprisonment is illegal, because of technicalities in the computation and parole laws.

TIP TO POOLROOMS TO CLOSE.

Instructions for the Present Are Not to Fight Jerome. The poolroom keepers got word yesterday afternoon to close up on Monday. This means that the poolroom keepers have been instructed not to fight Mr. Jerome. In a downtown district orders were sent out to close all the rooms on Monday. Two or three of the principal uptown rooms were told that District Attorney Jerome had got enough evidence to summon the proprietors to the Criminal Courts Building.

A member of one of the poolroom associations was doing his best to dissuade the proprietors that under the present conditions the pool room men had decided not to make any fight and to close up.
